

AUSTRIAN STUDIES

Austrian Studies is a yearbook devoted to reflecting sustained interest in the distinctive cultural traditions of the Habsburg Empire, the Austrian Republics and the period of German annexation. Its focus is Austrian culture from 1750 to the present. Contributions are also encouraged on the German-language culture of former areas of the Habsburg Empire.

Austrian Studies publishes a wide range of articles together with a selection of book reviews. Each volume has a coherent but broadly based theme. Interested colleagues are invited to propose themes for future issues and to act as guest editors for these issues. Unsolicited articles with no immediate relevance to the current thematic calls are also welcome, but can only be included in future issues if critical mass accrues. Suggestions for book reviews and features (anniversaries, obituaries, etc.) are always welcome.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES (updated October 2019)

Please note that Austrian Studies only publishes original work and will under no circumstances accept submissions that have been published elsewhere or are due to be published elsewhere in substantially the same form.

Contributors are required to sign a copyright waiver form. Permission to reproduce articles published in Austrian Studies will not normally be given until a period of one year has elapsed since original publication in Austrian Studies.

All submissions are sent to expert referees and are not finally accepted for publication until a satisfactory report has been obtained from an appropriate expert. The editors cannot therefore guarantee publication of an article submitted until this process has been completed.

1. Articles should not normally be more than 7,000 words long, including footnotes and translations; if much original primary material needs to be quoted longer essays may be submitted, but only by prior arrangement with the editors.
2. If you need to subdivide your article, please do so using only upper-case roman numerals to mark each new section. Please do not use sub-headings.
3. Austrian Studies is published in the UK by the MHRA. For this reason, British English spellings should be used throughout. However, for verbs ending in -ize / -ise and nouns ending -ization / -isation, the preferred spellings are -ize and - ization.

4. Articles should be submitted following the MHRA Style Book. This can be accessed via <http://www.mhra.org.uk/style> which also gives details of how to purchase a printed copy.
5. Please submit articles in 12-point Times Roman throughout (text, quotations and footnotes).
6. Double-spacing should be used throughout — for text, quotations and footnotes. Text should not be right-justified. Please turn off all automatic hyphenation programs. Do not use so-called hard hyphens to improve word-splits at line endings. Do not use hard page breaks. Only use hard returns at the end of a paragraph, or in lists and verse where definite line breaks are required.
7. Indentations should be consistent. Use tabs (for the beginning of a paragraph) or paragraph indent. Please do not use spaces to indent.
8. Use footnotes rather than endnotes. Footnotes should be used for references only, not for additional material. Please place footnote numbers at the ends of sentences wherever possible, or else at the ends of phrases after commas or semi-colons.
9. Quotations in prose of more than sixty words (and all verse quotations of more than two lines) should be separated from the body of the text by extra space above and below. They should not be enclosed within quotation marks but they should be indented. Shorter quotations should be enclosed within single quotation marks and run on with the main text. Quotations within quotations should be enclosed in double quotation marks. Omissions within quotations should be indicated by square brackets thus: [. . .]; editorial interpolations should also be enclosed in square brackets.
- 10. All quotations should be given in the original language, followed by an English translation. Translations should be given in square brackets (no quotation marks) after the original and the reference or note number given after both.
11. Please do not use the abbreviations f. and ff. when giving page ranges. Please give the precise ranges, e.g. pp. 29-46 (rather than pp. 29ff.) or pp. 45-46 (rather than pp. 45f.).
12. Second and subsequent references to works already cited in full should be given with the author's surname, abbreviated title and page number only: Goldstücker, Weltfreunde, p. 288. Author-date systems, the Harvard system and the Chicago system should not be used.
13. Where possible, brief references to frequently quoted sources (such as primary texts, editions, diaries, etc.) should be incorporated into the main text. Any abbreviations used should be explained in a footnote to the first reference.

14. Abbreviations such as 'op. cit.' and 'idem' should be avoided altogether; use 'ibid.' only in a footnote or parenthesis immediately after a fuller reference to the same source.
15. Names of societies, museums, galleries, libraries and other institutions in Germany, Austria, France, etc. (e.g. Deutsches Theatrumuseum, Hugo von Hofmannsthal-Gesellschaft) should not be italicized or placed in quotation marks. Leave them as plain text. Italicize any isolated German words used within the English text (e.g. Landtag, Reichstag, Wehrmacht, Staatsdichter, Bildungsroman) but use these sparingly. Also italicize most French and Latin tags (e.g. vis-à-vis, de rigueur, ab ovo, ab initio, per se, mutatis mutandis), but again use these sparingly. Note that some words originally foreign are now judged to have entered the English language: an up-to-date edition of the Oxford English Dictionary will indicate which.
16. Headings of reviews: Author's name; title in full; series (if any); place of publication, publisher and date, in parentheses; number of pages (preliminaries + text); [new line] price (if known; £, $, € before the figure; SwF after; all other currencies stated in full); ISBN number. (Note that the publisher is required for books reviewed, but not for bibliographic references in articles). For example:

Philip Ward, Hofmannsthal and Greek Myth: Expression and Performance, British and Irish Studies in German Language and Literature 24 (Berne: Lang, 2002), 298 pp. £29.00, 69.00 SwF, €46.70. ISBN: 3-906766-44-6.
